

BULLIED AND TERRIFIED

JASON PAYNE

Former RCMP officer Bill Salhany, a quadriplegic since waking up from heart bypass surgery in 2018, says he and others at the George Pearson Centre long-term care home have been terrorized by a dozen residents who freely abuse drugs and alcohol. A10-11

Bill Salhany, a former RCMP officer, lives at the George Pearson Centre. He says many residents and staff live in fear due to drug and alcohol use by a dozen fellow residents who harass and bully others who are physically and cognitively frail. The situation is intolerable, he says, and police have become involved. JASON PAYNE
